Call for Papers

The series of MFCS symposia, organized since 1972, has a long and well-established tradition. The MFCS symposia encourage high-quality research in all branches of theoretical computer science. Their broad scope provides an opportunity to bring together researchers who do not usually meet at specialized conferences. Quality papers presenting original research on theoretical aspects of computer science are solicited.

Principal topics of interest include (but are not limited to): algorithms and data structures (incl. sequential, parallel distributed, randomized, approximation, graph, network, on-line parameterized, optimization algorithms), algorithmic game theory, algorithmic learning theory, computational complexity (structural and model-related), computational geometry, models of computation, networks (incl. wireless, sensor, ad-hoc networks), parallel and distributed computing, quantum computing, automata, grammars and formal languages, combinatorics on words, trees, and other structures, bioinformatics, computer-assisted reasoning, concurrency theory, cryptography and security, databases and knowledge-based systems, formal specifications and program development, foundations of computing, logic, algebra and categories in computer science, types in computer science, mobile computing, semantics and verification of programs, theoretical issues in artificial intelligence.

Invited speakers: Anindya Banerjee (IMDEA Software Institute, Madrid, Spain), Paolo Boldi (Università degli Studi di Milano, Italy), Zoltan Esik (University of Szeged, Hungary, 40th anniversary speaker), Martin Kutrib (Universität Giessen, Germany), Yishay Mansour (Tel Aviv University, Israel).

Paper submission: Submissions to MFCS must not exceed 12 pages (in Springer-Verlag's Lecture Notes style and including bibliography). If the authors believe that more details are essential to substantiate the main claims, they may include a clearly marked appendix that will be read at the discretion of the program committee. Simultaneous submissions of papers to any other conference with published proceedings or submitting previously published papers is not allowed. The proceedings will be published in the ARCoSS subline of Lecture Notes in Computer Science by Springer-Verlag. Information about the submission procedure are available on the conference web page.

By submitting a paper the authors acknowledge that in case of acceptance at least one of the authors will attend the conference and present the paper.
